Biography

Bertille Rusé is a partner and an insurance recovery lawyer who deals with complex commercial litigation cases, often with international or multijurisdictional aspects. She has an extensive experience in the field of industrial risks and assists clients in the management of proceedings resulting from major industrial catastrophes. She represents policyholders in judicial investigations involving over 20 different parties and dispute resolution arising from fire and explosions.

Bertille regularly assists policyholders with insurance policy analysis, team coordination, appointment of technical experts or loss adjusters, and negotiations on coverage as well as coverage disputes. She works with policyholders in various lines of business in the insurance sector, such as property damage, D&O, product recall/liability, professional liability, environmental liability and business interruption.

She also acts as a monitoring counsel in proceedings pending before foreign jurisdictions as class actions before US courts. Bertille represents French and international companies in all stages of civil and commercial international disputes, as well as in some arbitration (ICC, ad hoc, ARIAS). She regularly advises companies specialized in the engineering, industrial, management of real estate properties and banking sectors during all pre-litigation and disputes they may face.
